MIT-Philippines-Palawan Mission Project

The Fix Family

Sunrise going to Atlanta

Hello AWA friends and family,

By the time of my next mission report, I will, by God's grace, be a commercial pilot! I'm so excited and nervous at the same time! It's been a long road, but I'm in it for the long haul. I didn't start this journey just to do this for a few years. I want to serve as a missionary for as long as I have life in me.

Last week I flew the AWA plane to pick up a neighbor of AWA who was south of Atlanta and needed to get back to Smithfield, NC. It helped me with additional flying hours and helped him to get back home. I flew out as the sun was just touching the horizon. My mind went back to Thanksgiving day, almost ten years ago when a friend who had just earned his private pilots license asked me to go fly with him. We flew from Tennessee to Kentucky for Thanksgiving and up to that point I didn't have much interest in becoming a pilot, but suddenly it hit me! My friend had been telling me of the need for mission pilots in the mission field and he explained that if God was calling me to do this kind of work, I shouldn't worry about the funds. "God will provide", he assured me.

Now I was 6500 feet above sea level, piloting an aircraft across some of the same hills that my friend and I had flown over ten years earlier. The journey that God started me on that day has been an exciting one. I've learned so much

PRAYER REQUEST:

That God would guide us by His Spirit and open the way before us to bless the people of the Philippines. Please continue to pray for my family and AWA as we near deployment.

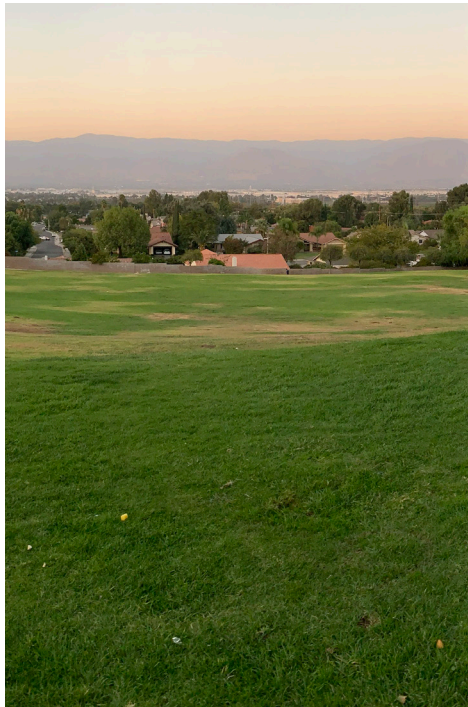

PROJECT NEEDS:

- Monthly supporters or pledges so we can deploy to the Philippines.

about aviation life and the great God we serve. I wouldn't change anything that has brought me to this point in my life. Looking ahead, my dreams are to take what God has shown me and go to the mission field where I will gladly serve the people of the Philippines and anyone else that God puts in my path. God did not bless me so incredibly just to have me keep His love to myself. I have to share it!

You are making it possible for my family to serve people in great need and to be His hands and feet (and wings).
